Your IT Career in San Antonio!

No matter how sophisticated the technology, it still takes people!™

The Mile High Chapter of the AITP, a 501(c)(6) nonprofit organization dedicated to continuing ethical IT leadership and management development from the classroom to the boardroom.

Join us on March 15th for Two Captivating Presentations

1 – How Did Attention to the Entrepreneurial Spirit Build the American Industrial System

Howard Flomberg will be speaking from his recently published book Management, American Style.

His book traces the American entrepreneurial spirit back to its roots in ancient times. The American success story is based on the fact that we have never had a stratified set of classes. People have always been able to improve their lot in life. Flomberg goes on to talk about allowing the individual to excel and rewarding that individual for excelling. He extends this philosophy and talks about quality assurance.

Howard P. Flomberg has had the unique opportunity to have two successful careers simultaneously. After College, (Thank you GI Bill) Flomberg spent about 30 years developing Information Systems as everything from a Jr. Programmer to a Database Administrator and a Project Manager. He consulted at many Fortune 500 companies and worked for Ross Perot at two companies. He blazed the trail on Quality Assurance and Development Methodologies.

While working in Industry, Flomberg started teaching part-time at his Alma Mater, Metropolitan State College of Denver. He taught Computer Management Science and, as industry changed, Management Science.
Howard Flomberg is now retired from both careers, three if you include keeping computers “on the air” in Southeast Asia, and is going to relax, write and consult. Life is good!

2 – Managing Your Technical Career

Roberta will cover the topics of advancing your career, how to become an attractive passive candidate by creating visibility, changing careers or moving to other disciplines, and conducting fruitful job searches.

Roberta Gamza is a professional resume writer, career strategist/marketer, and founder of Career Ink. Her work is a synergistic collaboration with her clients to produce compelling documents that captivate employers and marketing strategies that get results.

Prior to starting Career Ink, Roberta enjoyed a distinguished 15-year career at Hewlett-Packard Company where she was best known for her marketing insight and keen writing skills. She is both a longtime supporter and friend of the AITP and has helped many in our membership find and maintain meaningful careers.
