Mile High Chapter of the AITP, a nonprofit association dedicated to serving the upwardly mobile IT Professional.

Join us on May 15th for two presentations and Mile High Chapter annual student awards:

1 – LinkedIn Essentials: Building a Positive Reputation

With over 200 million members, LinkedIn is the premiere social networking sites for business professionals. As such, many companies, recruiters and individuals are relying on the well-connected LinkedIn members to provide key services or to fill their open jobs. Can they find you?

During this presentation, career coach Donna Shannon will share how to leverage your profile to create a positive reputation that can turn into paying customers or real job opportunities.

Author, speaker and teacher Donna Shannon comes from an eight-year background in Human Resources and Recruiting. She has taught classes on employment issues throughout the Denver metro area since 2004, as well as leading workshops in Dallas, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Donna provides comprehensive workshops on LinkedIn, job searching, resumes and interview skills, teaching both business owners and job seekers effective personal marketing techniques. Check out her range of services at www.personaltouchcareerservices.com

2 – National Collegiate Conference Report.

Our award-winning students from Colorado Mesa University will report on their recent trip to the 19th Annual AITP National Collegiate Conference (NCC) in Atlanta, Georgia.
